Abstract

For project managers, there is an increasing focus, especially in current times, to not just deliver project outcomes, but also create an environment where people thrive, connect, collaborate and deliver value to stakeholders. However, the reality is that most leaders aren't clear on how to do so, and thereby struggle to lead with much impact. This hurts stakeholder confidence, as well as morale of the team. Over the longer run, this severely affects their perception as a leader who delivers, and this can be detrimental to their professional growth.

This online masterclass has been designed for the project management community and focuses on 3 core areas of effective leadership- how to engage, inspire and empower people. Filled with practical insights and key takeaways, this serves as a great learning experience for anyone responsible for leading and managing projects, and is curious on how to elevate their impact as a leader. The masterclass aims to deliver the following structure (at a high level):

Module 1: Engage People

- Understand the 3 golden questions every leader must answer to boost connection, engagement and collaboration
- Creating alignment within the group, and strategies for getting people on the same page

Module 2: Inspire People

- What holds people back from solving problems effectively
- A powerful framework that helps people solve problems of any magnitude

Module 3: Empower people

- An effective approach to delegate tasks, and identify what not to delegate
- How to set and manage expectations seamlessly, and how to handle ad-hoc requests from stakeholders, without having to say 'No'.
